

Institute for Higher Education Policy
Fall 2017 Research Intern

The Institute for Higher Education Policy (IHEP) is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization committed to promoting access to and success in higher education for all students. Based in Washington, D.C., IHEP develops innovative policy- and practice-oriented research to guide policymakers and education leaders, who develop high-impact policies that will address our nation's most pressing education challenges.

JOB SUMMARY:

IHEP Research Interns are members of the organization's research team. In this role, interns are likely to perform literature reviews, participate in quantitative and qualitative data collection and analysis, summarize information from postsecondary-themed events and/or new research studies, and support the development of research and policy reports.

PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Support IHEP's research team with quantitative and qualitative research and analysis of policy- and practice-relevant postsecondary education issues, including conducting literature and policy scans, performing data analyses, and summarizing findings.
- Prepare PowerPoint presentations, memos, and other content to inform the work of the research team.
- Support the research team in preparing responses to time-sensitive requests from media and policymakers.
- Collaborate with and provide assistance to other departments and staff as required.

QUALIFICATIONS:

- Current graduate student pursuing a master's degree or Ph.D. in an education- or policy-related field.
- Availability to work a minimum of 20 hours per week through the fall semester (early-September through mid-December).
- Strong written and oral communication skills.
- Strong critical thinking and problem solving skills.
- Some prior experience with quantitative and qualitative data analysis, data collection, and higher education data sets.
- A keen interest in public policy and/or postsecondary education research and the desire to work in a social justice-minded organization.
- Excellent organizational and follow-through skills and attention to detail.
- Ability to work both independently and collaboratively.
- Strong computer skills, including proficiency in MS Office applications (Word, Excel, PowerPoint, Outlook).

HOW TO APPLY:

Compensation is competitive and commensurate with experience. This position is based in Washington, D.C.

Interested candidates should provide a cover letter, resume, list of at least three references (including at least one direct supervisor), and writing sample. The writing sample should be a maximum of three pages, single-spaced, and preferably written for a policy audience. An excerpt from a longer paper is acceptable. We will review applications on a rolling basis, but have a priority deadline to apply by July 3, 2017.

To apply, please click here.

